Material Specific Details

note              A descendant chart has been created beginning with Jacob R. Elfreth (1789-1870) and wife, Abigail Pierce.

Abstract          The collection spanning the period 1832-1892 consists primarily of the letters written to Joseph Elfreth (1824-1898), a Quaker, many of which relate to family matters, including health and the birth of children, and occasionally indicates the connections among Quaker families. There are also financial accounts, miscellaneous letters, documents and a few photographs.
Scope and Contents note

The collection consists primarily of the letters written to Joseph Elfreth (1824-1898), a Quaker, many of which relate to family matters, including health and the birth of children, and occasionally indicates the connections among Quaker families. Many of the letter writers only sign with an initial, but some who can be identified include: Caleb P. Elfreth, James Elfreth and Hannah Hill Elfreth's mother, Abigail Pierce. As well, there is a box of financial accounts, including two notebooks kept by Jacob R. Elfreth. There are also miscellaneous letters, documents and a few photographs. Unusual among the latter is an eye-witness account by Florence Elfreth, Joseph's daughter, of events at the Equal Rights Convention, ca. 1870s.

Letters from and Letters to Joseph Elfreth 1834-1896 (Bulk, 1855-1896) 2.0 Folder 1. A-G; 2. H-S

Scope and Contents note

There are two letters from Joseph Elfreth, written in 1834 and 1846; another, dated 1863 and signed "Joseph and Hannah" is likely to be from him as well. Letter writers include Joseph's mother and brother, Caleb, as well as William Harris, William Hill and Rolph C. Marsh. Many of the letters refer to family matters, including health; the subject of travel and its travails is also encountered. In 1852 [sic, though likely 1862], Joseph's mother writes of a drafting of 300,000 additional men "leaving for parts unknown...The hospital nearby, fifth & Buttonwood Sts...has been seriously charged with secesion, the owner ...has been arrested." A letter, perhaps directed to Joseph's wife (Hannah Hill) from W. Hill in 1868 speaks of the Ku Klux Klan and that the mass of American people have no sympathy with them. William Harris' letters detail his travel in Pennsylvania from 1869-1873. The greatest number of letters is from Rolph C. Marsh, 1859-1869, which in the main categorize his failing health, but also some amount of travel. Letters often mention the thoughtfulness of Joseph Elfreth.
